New table top and board gaming venue on North Shore

North Shore table top and board gamers have a new place to enjoy their hobbies with the recent opening of the D6 Lounge at Roseville.

Appealing to the slightly older gamer, the D6 Lounge aims to cater for a range of games that don't usually have access to a dedicated playing space. With a great range of 6'x4' boards, tables and chairs, gamers have the perfect place to meet and play.

Owner Michael Pan and Store Manager Luke Cameron have established a light, modern, well stocked 'haunt' for those who play a range of table top battle games, card and board games and even role playing activity.

"Our aim is to provide a friendly, welcoming environment where people can come and enjoy their hobbies, play against like-minded games and try new games," said Luke.

He said the store was born of frustration at a lack of suitable venues for role playing games (RPG) and collectible card games (CCG).

"Most people played at someone's home, but that has its limits, and we realised there was a huge opportunity we could fill by offering a space."

Luke said all tables were free of charge to use, with most of the boards having a selection of terrain that could be used.

"We only charge when people want to reserve a table for a whole day, for whatever game or activity they want to play," Luke said.

The D 6 Lounge has a stock of snacks and drinks that can be purchased at reasonable prices, plus there is dedicated spaces where hobbyists can sit and build models, paint, or just discuss rules and tactics. Various games and items are also available for sale.

Luke said the ambition was to build a core of regular gamers, then begin running more adventurous competitions and leagues later this year towards the Christmas holidays.

"Our aim is to provide a great atmosphere for gamers of all persuasions and ages. We're also keen for first timers or newcomers to table gaming to come in and see what the commotion is all about."
